Man arrested in fatal 2011 hit-and-run

PHILADELPHIA. Police yesterday made an arrest in a hit-and-run that happened two years ago in Port Richmond.

Robert Sickman, 26, is charged with DUI and an accident involving death for allegedly hitting William McCue, 28, as he crossed Richmond Street during the early morning on April 10, 2011.

Police said Sickman never stopped and McCue died on the scene. Sickman's car was recovered the next morning.

Sickman turned himself into the Accident Investigation Division yesterday after officers identified him as the car's operator. METRO

Police: Girl, 12, raped while waiting for bus

EAST GERMANTOWN. Police are investigating the possible rape of a 12-year-old as she was waiting for her school bus yesterday morning.

The girl reportedly told police that an unknown man wearing a ski mask forced the girl into a nearby alley and sexually assaulted her.

The victim's school, Imani Education Circle Charter, released a statement yesterday saying the administration and staff were "deeply saddened by the report of the assault" and will work with police.

"Although we have made every precaution necessary to ensure the safety of our students on the grounds of our school and within our school facility, crimes can and do occur outside of any school's property," the statement read.

The start of spring signifies fresh flowers, warm weather and new dishes at Citizens Bank Park.

The Phillies gave a glimpse of new menu items yesterday at the Majestic Clubhouse Store.

Jeremy Campbell, the ballpark's concessions manager, called the new kid on the block "what I think will be our signature flavor this year."

He was talking, of course, about Federal Donuts. The stand, which will set up shop in Ashburn Alley, will sell its signature fried chicken and gourmet doughnut combination.

Double dog, a Chicago dog, chicken burger, slow roasted beef, smoked turkey wrap, toasted chicken grinder and hickory-smoked pulled pork.

A beer garden will also open behind the bullpens featuring custom Alley Brewery Company Lager. A gluten-free dedicated stand will be based behind section 136.

If you're in Ashburn Alley, you can access free

Wi-Fi in the center-field rooftop concession area and Harry the K's.

The Phillies Majestic Store was renovated to include a wall of Phillies caps, and now fans can buy bases and balls used during the game they are watching.

The team also announced plans to give away a Phillie Phanatic bobblehead for every month of the season.

Gina's Cupcakes: A sweet success story

PHILADELPHIA. Gina Catinella's heart was broken. She opened Sweet GC's Bakeshop in Camden County, N.J., a sweet shop specializing in cupcakes for weddings and events. It failed two years later.

Now in its third year, Gina's Cupcakes will add death by chocolate as well as peanut butter and jelly cupcakes, among others. She's also envisioning a s'mores or marshmallow cupcake in the future.

At the ballpark, she's found her true calling.

Years after suit, stop-and-frisk problems persist

Two years after the settlement of a contentious lawsuit over the Philadelphia Police Department's use of stop-and-frisk practices, officers are still disproportionately targeting minorities and conducting stops without reasonable suspicion, according to a report from the American Civil Liberties Union released yesterday.

The ACLU found that though the overall number of pedestrian stops decreased in 2012, nearly half of the stops made in the first six months were conducted without reasonable suspicion and the vast majority of their targets were minorities.

Those figures aren't much different than data released three years despite a consent decree requiring the department to monitor, retrain and, if necessary, discipline officers.

"The problem is whatever training and supervision that has been done has not yet been effective in our view," said ACLU attorney David Rudovsky.

He said the shift in stop-and-frisk practices is "a big culture change" for the po-

Up in smoke

The ACLU report also analyzed citywide marijuana possession arrests between September and November of 2012.

It found black people accounted for 84.4 percent of the arrests, even though they constitute 43.4 percent of Philadelphia's population. White people, who make up 36.9 percent of the city's population, accounted for only 5.8 percent of pot possession arrests.

lice department.

"At this point, they need to not just retrain," he said. "Officers making bad stops on a regular basis have to be held accountable."

Perhaps most troubling are stark discrepancies between stop-and-frisk audits conducted by police inspectors and those generated by the ACLU.

There was a roughly 40 point difference in the percentage of stops the ACLU classified as without reasonable suspicion versus the percentage provided by police inspectors.

"I think what the city should be looking at is they have inspectors that are reviewing these — first of all, we think the inspectors' standards have to be reviewed to make sure they're doing it right," Rudovsky said, adding it boils down to accountability. The ACLU plans to request court intervention if the numbers don't improve.

River claims driver of Kelly Drive car accident

The driver of a car that plunged into the Schuylkill River after it left Kelly Drive yesterday afternoon has died, officials announced. The man, who as of press time had not been identified, was pulled out of the river around 1 p.m. yesterday. According to onlookers, several people jumped into the river after the car to try and recover the driver. They floated to the surface empty-handed. One was injured in the attempt and was taken to the hospital, officials said. ● METRO

Charges and penalties

Bruno, who occasionally presided over Traffic Court cases while judges were away on training, was indicted in late January for allegedly asking Judge Fortunato Perri to fix a traffic ticket for a friend and adjudicating another ally's citation.

Bruno is charged with wire and mail fraud, conspiracy and aiding and abetting.

"A review of the federal indictment ... alleges very little involvement by Judge Bruno," the complaint reads.

"Judge Bruno has emphatically denied his guilt and plead not guilty and will vigorously oppose these charges at the criminal trial."

● METRO/AW

Quoted

"Judge Bruno found out about the order from news reports since he was never served with any request by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court or given any opportunity to respond since the court did not issue any rule-to-show cause." THE COMPLAINT READS

Indicted judge sues over suspension

A judge has sued the state Supreme Court, claiming he was unconstitutionally suspended without pay or benefits after being federally indicted — but not yet tried or convicted — in connection with a Philadelphia Traffic Court corruption probe into ticket fixing.

West Chester Magisterial District Judge Mark A. Bruno filed a civil suit in Federal Court last week against the Pennsylvania Supreme Court and six court justices claiming he was denied due process of law in the suspension decision, which was allegedly made without any notice, adjudicatory hearing or opportunity for Bruno to respond.

The suit claims disciplinary action would fall under the purview of the Judicial Conduct Board.

It alleges that the Supreme Court issued an order dated Feb. 1 — three days after Bruno was indicted — relieving Bruno from his judicial and administrative duties. Bruno said he received the order by mail Feb. 5.

The suit says since there is "a good possibility" the complex Traffic Court trial won't start until 2014, Bruno is precluded from having a timely chance to clear his name.

"Judge Bruno has been severely deprived since he has lost his sole source of income and now must rely on his wife's income as a teacher in the Catholic school system," the complaint reads. It also says he is "unable to pay his bills" and "has had great difficulty finding other work."

Bruno, who wants his job back, has applied for an injunction compelling the Supreme Court to reverse his suspension pending the trial outcome or to provide a timely hearing regarding disciplinary action.

He's also seeking back pay, benefits and attorney fees.

Bombs kill nearly 60 on Iraq invasion anniversary

► People look at the remains of a car bomb explosion near the fortified Green Zone in Baghdad yesterday.

More than a dozen car bombs and suicide blasts tore through Shi'ite Muslim districts in the Iraqi capital Baghdad and other areas yesterday, killing nearly 60 people on the 10th anniversary of the U.S.-led invasion that ousted Saddam Hussein.

Sunni Islamist insurgents linked to al Qaeda are regaining ground in Iraq, invigorated by the war next door in Syria and have stepped up attacks on Shi'ite targets in an attempt to provoke a wider sectarian confrontation.

A car bomb exploded in a busy Baghdad market, three detonated in the Shi'ite district of Sadr City and another near the entrance of the heavily fortified Green Zone that sent a smoke into the air alongside the River Tigris.

A suicide bomber in a truck attacked a police base in a Shi'ite town south of the capital, and another blew himself up inside a restaurant to target a police major in the northern city of Mosul.

The Iraq war began shortly before dawn in Baghdad on Thursday, March 20, 2003, with U.S. air strikes on the capital.

Shortly afterward, President George W. Bush, addressing Americans on television late on March 19 U.S. time, said the offensive was under way.

Now a decade after U.S. and Western troops swept Saddam from power, Iraq still struggles with insur-

Unending political crisis

After Operation Iraqi Freedom promised to liberate the Iraqi people, Iraq has struggled with a decade that drove the country into sectarian mayhem which killed tens of thousands and the turmoil of a young democracy emerging out of dictatorship.

Years since the U.S.-led invasion that ousted Saddam Hussein began gents, sectarian friction and political feuds among Shi'ite, Sunni and Kurdish factions who share power in the government of Shi'ite Prime Minister Nuri al-Maliki.

In a sign of concern over security, the cabinet yesterday postponed local elections in two provinces, Anbar and Nineveh, for up to six months because of threats to electoral workers and violence there, according to Maliki's media adviser Ali al-Moussawi.

The polls will go ahead elsewhere on April 20.

► General Pervez Musharraf, a staunch American ally after 9/11, spent more than four years in voluntary exile from his Pakistan homeland ► But now he plans to return to fight new elections

Exclusive interview

PERVEZ MUSHARRAF:

'I HAVE A DUTY TO RETURN TO MY COUNTRY'

► General Pervez Musharraf has been warned that if he returns to Pakistan, he will face arrest.

General Pervez Musharraf was the president of Pakistan, a leading American ally in the war on terror, from 2001-2008. He then voluntarily resigned before what many observers saw as politically motivated impeachment proceedings could be started against him, and went into self-imposed exile. But he has now declared his intention to return to Pakistan on March 24 to contest forthcoming presidential elections.

He was nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize in 2004 for his support on the war on terror and spoke strongly against Islamic terrorism in the wake of the 9/11 attacks on the United States.

He has been warned that if he returns to Pakistan he faces arrest warrants for allegedly failing to provide adequate security which led to the assassination of former Pakistani Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto.

But the General has told supporters of his All Pakistan Muslim League political party that he would improve Pakistan's economy and strengthen foreign investment in the country.

Here, in this exclusive interview, he speaks to Metro as he finalizes preparations to return to his homeland.

What is ailing Pakistan at this time?

Terrorism, especially sectarian terrorism. Law and order has failed especially in places like Balochistan and Karachi. The economy has broken down and there is not enough economie stability and jobs. That is the backbone of a stable country and it has broken down. Also, tensions with India remain.

What do you want to accomplish by your return, and why go now?

Pakistan is a very large country and an important regional player. When I was president I wanted to achieve for Pakistan internal security and stability, regional peace, international acceptability and an improvement and amelioration within the Muslim world.

Internal stability would allow us to examine the welfare and well-being of the population. Why go back now? The elections are to be held in the next few months according to the constitution and it is now or never for me. If I am not there to stand for election it will be another five years until I have a chance to do so. What are your chances of success?

If you listen to the commentators they will tell you that my party does not have the internal structure to fight an election. It is simply not true. We are established with organizations across the country and some major political players are just waiting for my return to offer their support. There are a number of people and organizations that I call floaters in Pakistan, and my return will bring hope to them and the chance to work together. Only I can do this. Many people are clamoring for me to return. I would say I have a 50/50 chance of success.

Why are you taking this risk, which must also be physical?

After 9/11 I was resigned to personal risk on a daily basis. It was something that became part of my routine. Because I am ex-president of Pakistan, the authorities must provide me with some security when I return — but of course I also have my own arrangements. I have faith that life and death is out of my hands and I have a duty to return to my country to deal with its problems.

There are legal charges against you in Pakistan, a residue of your presidency. How will you deal with this obstacle?

I will simply appeal to the judicial process. One has to have faith in the courts even though there is a history of judicial activism. I am 100 percent confident that these false, trumped-up and politically motivated charges against me will be thrown out.

With significant U.S. troop withdrawals scheduled, how do you see the strategic situation in Afghanistan playing out over the next, say, three years?

If the U.S. and coalition forces leave lock stock and barrel then after 2014 I can see one of several things happening: a return to how Afghanistan was from 1986-1997, which was vicious tribal warfare — the various ethnic groups fighting each other — or the return of the Pushtun Taliban versus the Northern Alliance of minorities in Afghanistan.

If, however, the U.S. leaves some forces, with air and special forces support which is made available to the Afghan National Army, I can foresee a situation remaining as it is now — not a win and not a loss with the Taliban held at bay.

Otherwise I can see a proxy war being fought in Afghanistan between India and Pakistan. India is active in Afghanistan trying to create an active anti-Pakistan country. Pakistan is logically doing all it can to stop this.

With both U.S. and Israeli military strikes possible, Iran and its nuclear program have been frequently in the news. Pakistan shares a border with Iran. Why should Pakistan be allowed to keep the nuclear weapons it possesses, when Iran, its neighbor, should not?

You cannot compare the two. Pakistan developed nonconventional weapons as a deterrent, as purely a defensive measure. Pakistan faces an existential threat: India. We have fought three wars with India since independence in 1947.

We are the two giants in the region, and it is important that war between us should become unthinkable — which is why we justify our nuclear capability.

Iran has no such similar reason for having nuclear weapons. There is no similar existential threat to Iran as there is to Pakistan, so they cannot want a nuclear program for defensive reasons. ● TONY METCALF/METRO

Q&A

What are the causes of the deterioration in relations between Pakistan and the United States? What could you do to improve them?

I had good relations with George W. Bush to the extent that I could call him up at any time to discuss problems or make suggestions. I believe that trust has been lost somewhat. Pakistan and the U.S. need to restore that level of honesty and trust as Pakistan is such an influence in the region. There needs to be open dialogue, and we need to be honest and transparent with each other once again.

Previously, you were Pakistan's chief executive. What would you do differently?

The question presumes that there are many things I would do differently. Not necessarily. When I was president, the internal security situation was far more stable than it is now. The economy was growing and there was jobs for the people. Prices were stable and we had consistent gas and electricity supplies and prices. We were able to focus on the welfare of the people, internally. So far as our relationships with India ... I would seek to restart the process of rapprochement I had begun when I was president. We could have signed treaties on two of the major issues that divided us and were working towards a solution in Kashmir, but these opportunities arise, but do not always stay. If they are missed they can be gone. I would try again with India. We are the two biggest countries in the region. We could deliver a huge boost to regional security, stability and economy if we could settle our differences and that is what I would try to do.

THE WORD

Dorothy Robinson's take on the world of gossip @dorothyatmetro dorothy.robinson@metro.us

Who is the father of the King of Pop's kids?

For years, I've gazed upon the children of Michael Jackson and wondered: "Are they really his kids?" What trips me up is that they kind of look like him, but only after he underwent his radical plastic surgery. But we can't forget that if Jackson were still alive and "unadulterated," he would resemble Tito instead of La Toya. I guess what I'm trying to clumsily say is that even with a white mother, Blanket, Paris and Prince should look more like a young Michael and a lot less like the crypt-keeper he became. Also, holy cats: What a crazy family.

Anyway, it's looking more and more like MJ is not the father of his children (I knew it! Kind of!). According to TMZ, in their nasty wrongful death lawsuit against AEG Live, his family members are asking to exclude any evidence of the true paternity of Jackson's children. (Katharine Jackson and Blanket, Paris and Prince are suing the entertainment giant for $40 billion for the negligent hiring and supervision of Dr. Conrad Murray during preparation for Jackson's "This Is It" tour.)

I'm unsure why the paternity would be entered into evidence — I'm far from a legal scholar — but the fact that the Jackson family is trying to block this is telling. Also, if the Jacksons do prevail against AEG, I hope they use some of those billions for therapy for those poor kids. Because even the best therapist in the land (Dr. Phil, naturally) cannot go there.

To keep from worrying about really big stuff

After Demetri Martin left New York for California a few years ago, he realized the reason he does the thoughtfully silly type of comedy he does.

"I would go for these long beach walks, and bring my notebook, day-dreaming and writing," he says. "I do like going for walks and kind of escaping, which is probably why I don't do a lot of topical material, if any: I just don't feel as inspired by any of that. But it was this beautiful day and I was walking home and it was like the end of the day and it was sunset and there was hardly anybody on the beach. The ocean was on feeling existential angst.

"I do remember, as a kid, Gary Larson being one of my first favorite things that I found funny."

my left, I had flip-flops in my backpack and the water was hitting my feet and I remember thinking, 'I'm gonna freaking die!' I got all the distractions away, all the New York stuff that keeps me from worrying about really big stuff, so I had to escape into some stupid line drawings or jokes or whatever, because it's just kind of too much."

The tools he uses to hold his existential crisis at bay enable his audience to also stop thinking about morality. His brand new book, "Point Your Face at This" is a compilation of these self-described "stupid line drawings" that mine a similar life-affirming absurdity as the "The Far Side."

"I do remember, as a kid, Gary Larson being one of my first favorite things," says Martin. "I used to just pop into the bookstore and not have any money to buy anything, but I would just flip through a 'Far Side,' probably like a lot of kids, and just think how funny they were. And it was an interesting experience, to look at something on a page — often something without words — and find it funny. There was something so powerful about that for me."

of drawing you'll find when you "Point
Your Face At This."

Drawing the line

Though "Point Your Face at This" features the sort of drawings that Martin has been injecting into his stand-up for years, his current show does not feature extra emphasis on drawing. He says although he likes to dabble in drawing, music and longer-form writing, stand-up is still his first love.

"Stand-up is so fun because you get immediate feedback," he says. "You can think of stuff and improvise it right there on-stage, or think of it earlier in the day and then you get to say it and see what the audience thinks."

Martin is humble about his skill as an artist, however, saying he doesn't think his drawing is on par with that of Larson.

"A lot of my stuff, I think there's a simplicity to it, whether it's by design or just the best that I can do," he says. "It's funny how your style often is really just the upper limits of your own effort. I know people who are kind of virtuosos and style for them is a different thing: it's a conscious choice. But for me it's like, 'Here's the best I can do with where I'm at right now.'"

Keeping the cleanest face in Hollywood

Actress Drew Barrymore washes her face at least three times a day to stave off breakouts
We take a peek inside of her makeup bag

Drew Barrymore's new makeup line, FLOWER, is made up of BB creams, eyeshadows, mascaras, bronzers and lipsticks with trippy, hippie names like "Camelia Charm" and "Awesome Blossom." "I've been in a makeup chair my whole life playing with every product, from prestige to budget. But I think every woman should be able to afford a more inexpensive experience," she says. And with 181 products to choose from, all priced between $5 and $14, you can take your pick. She shares her beauty wisdom with us.

Romina McGuinness
METRO WORLD NEWS

Barrymore's daily beauty routine

"I wash my face three or four times a day. And I'm being conservative with the estimate! I like to keep my skin clean, because if I let it get dirty I can get breakouts. When you're in film or fashion, you have to wear makeup for up to 16 hours a day. So when I have time off in my real life, I wash obsessively."

Her sleepless nights with baby Olive

"I'm definitely going to search more rapidly for a dark-circle corrector. I caught a glimpse of myself in the mirror the other day, and I couldn't believe what I saw. It was just a fast glimpse so I went back and was like, 'No, yeah. I did see that!' I looked like I'd gotten punched. But in a weird way, it made me happy. At least these dark circles mean I'm a new mom as opposed to other reasons."

Her ongoing search for "the one"

"I'm still searching for 'the one' when it comes to the best skin-care product. I play around a lot. I would love to curate a skin line for people like me, who want the benefits of the intense stuff without the negatives of the strength, because my face doesn't react well to it."

Inside her makeup bag

"My makeup bag changes from week to week," Barrymore says. "I like putting different combinations together." Right now, she's using the following:

1. FLOWER Color Play Creme Eyeshadow in Orchid-ing Around: "It's got this wonderful grayish, purple, smokey hue to it. I'm mad about it. All you need is one swipe and you're done." $8, www.walmart.com
2. Shu Uemura eyelash curlers and Tweezerman Slant Tweezers: "I definitely still rock the good old Shu Uemura curler ($20, www.shuueamura-usa.com) and Tweezerman tweezers ($22, www.tweezerman.com)."
3. FLOWER Extreme Measures Lengthening Mascara in Brown: "I'm in a brown mood. This Drew Barrymore's new makeup launch, FLOWER, is available exclusively at Wal-Mart (www.walmart.com/flower).

mascara has a gorgeous mocha color to it. It looks rather light on the wand, but once you put it on it does everything you'd want a dark mascara to do!" $7, www.walmart.com

► They're creepy and they're kooky and they're at the Academy of Music.

Anything

► Broadway's 'The Addams Family' is at the Academy of Music ► Actress was happy to leave desk job to play Morticia

It's only fitting that KeLeen Snowgren was pulled away from a desk job in Dallas to play Morticia Addams. After her last show closed almost two years ago, Snowgren says that she decided "to stop musical theater and try my hand at a normal life." A year and a half later, she received a call out of the blue to audition for the touring company of the Broadway musical version of "The Addams Family," a clan for whom "normal life" is anything but.

The show, by Marshall Brickman, Rick Elice and Andrew Lippa is based on the darkly comic cartoons by Charles Addams, which have also been adapted as a 1960s TV series and a pair of movies in the 1990s. Snowgren studied the actresses who have preceded her as Morticia — Carolyn Jones on television, Angelica Huston in the films and Bebe Neuwirth in the original Broadway cast — to prepare her own take on the role.

"I always loved the character," she says, "espe-

With Jefferson's help.

"I've always loved traveling to new places. But seeing a hospital as a colon cancer patient was never on my list. Fortunately, I went to Jefferson. Their Kimmel Cancer Center is NCI-designated, and they rank among the best in the nation for cancer and digestive disorders, according to U.S. News & World Report. So I didn't have to travel far to get amazing care. And speaking of traveling, I'm currently planning several trips for later this year, when I'm on a break from my ongoing treatments. Because while I'm still on the road to recovery, I'm ready for more exciting journeys."

cially when Angelica Huston played it. Morticia is a very tall, dark, sultry woman, but ultimately she's also a wife and mother who was always caring, always nurturing, always concerned for her family's well-being. I wanted to make sure that would come across when I played her."

A self-described "Yankee Texan," Snowgren was born in Minnesota but raised in Houston, where she followed her twin sister into acting. Despite the fact that her sister "got the better role than I did in the school play," Snowgren insists there has never been any sibling rivalry between the twins.

"There's zero competition between us. We're best friends and totally supportive," she says.

While her return to the stage interrupted her attempt at normality, Snowgren says she's glad to be back in front of audiences. "At the end of a work day you've got a room full of people standing on their feet and congratulating you with a round of applause for doing a good job," she says. "It's not normal, but it's a pretty good life."

Exclusive! Exclusive! Play all about it!

Nowadays, if something comes out on the Xbox 360, chances are it will also show up on the PS3. Every now and then, however, console makers see a release that is exclusive to their platform. Let's review a couple of these beautiful unicorns, shall we?

► "LEGO City Undercover" is a spoof of cop movies.

'God of War: Ascension'

Console: PS3

Maker: Sony

Grade: ⓂⓂⓂⓂ

When "God of War III" finished the trilogy back in 2010, fans wondered what would be next. Now we have our answer in this prequel.

There's much to like here: It's the same button mashing, hyper-violent combat that has come to define the series. There isn't much new on the gameplay front, but the graphics are stunning.

'LEGO City Undercover'

For every beloved entertainment franchise, chances are there is LEGO video game to go with it. "Batman?" Check. "Lord of the Rings?" Check. "Star Wars?" Of course. Now, everyone's favorite childhood choking hazard has its own game. "LEGO City Undercover" is a genuinely funny spoof of cop movies that is set in a fully explorable open world.

The game is essentially a kid-friendly "Grand Theft Auto" with LEGO bricks. What it lacks in mayhem and gun violence it makes up for with hundreds of unlockable characters, a variety of vehicles and an absolutely gigantic city to romp around in. The only downside? The load times can be inexplicably long.

Help for sleepless nights

The Doctor Will See You Now

DR. MARK MELROSE

URGENTCAREMANHATTAN.COM

I am exhausted all the time and have trouble falling asleep. What can I do about insomnia?

Start the process by taking an inventory of what seems to be interfering with your sleep. Do you drink three cups of coffee daily? Do you eat dinner after 8 p.m.? Is it noisy in your room? Too hot or too cold? Are you taking a decongestant for a cold, making your heart race? Do you or your partner snore? Are you stressed out? Attempts to modify circumstances within your control may yield immediate results.

Prepare for sleep by adapting rituals that will allow you to unwind from your day. Get regular exercise. Resist taking naps if you have insomnia (if you don't, they're OK). Take a warm bath or shower, drink some herbal tea or warm milk and read a few chapters of a book. As hard as it may sound, try to go to sleep and wake up at the same time every day.

► As much as a quarter of all Americans report trouble sleeping.

You can also adapt your environment to make conditions for sleeping optimal. Try different pillows and linens until you find ones you like. Keep the room cool, dark and quiet. Get all electronics out of the bedroom. Take an over-the-counter analgesic like acetaminophen (like Tylenol) or ibuprofen (like Advil or Motrin) to relieve any musculoskeletal pain or a headache, and avoid stimulants like nicotine, caffeine and alcohol late in the day. All of these things influence sleep quality.

If you've altered your rituals and environment but are still having trouble, it may be time to consult a physician. Over-the-counter sleeping pills generally make use of the "drowsy" side effects of antihistamines, and may make you hung over the next day or exacerbate underlying conditions contributing to your insomnia. Your doctor can better assess the risks and benefits of various prescription sleep aids. He or she can also check for any underlying conditions that might be a factor in your insomnia. A doctor can also recommend mental health counseling for stressful circumstances beyond your control.

Horoscope

♈ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Be extremely careful with whom you have a serious discussion. There's no point in crossing swords with someone who you know has a bad temper.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. If you don't want to be disappointed, don't allow your expectations to exceed reality. It's OK to expect a lot from yourself, as long as what you hope to achieve is pragmatic.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. Having an abundance of energy might cause you to take on far more than is feasible, but you should take things one step at a time. Do what you can, but let others pitch in as well.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. It wouldn't hurt to be more thick-skinned than usual, especially if you find yourself working with someone who tries your patience. Keep your wits about you.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Goals that are important to you might not hold the same weight with your co-workers. Having different priorities could cause problems for everyone.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Relationships should be pleasant, as long as you don't impose your will on your companions. Being too demanding could spoil things quickly.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Although you can be a good worker, you can also lose steam easily. Should your interest wane, regardless of how little there is left to do, you could walk off the job without hesitation.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. As long as both you and your mate are thinking "we" instead of "I," you'll remain in harmony with each other. When it comes to any relationship, concordance is essential.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Even though you'll have no trouble protecting your own interests, you're not likely to be as conscientious about the concerns of others. It won't help your image.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Timing is generally important in fulfilling your objectives, and today will be no different. If you're out of sync with others, it's likely to dilute your achievements. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Loud iPods create bitter, not sweet, symphony

In our Age of Entitlement, we seem to have forgotten that the rights of an individual should not outweigh the rights of the majority. And so let's insist that subways post on trains and buses that if passengers insist on playing loud music and video games, the volumes of headsets need to be turned down to a level where they don't disturb the peaceful ride of others sitting 20 feet away from them. A symphony of iPods blasting several different beats and melodies on one train car is ambient noise most of us wish not to be exposed to.

PATRICIA LOVE, VIA E-MAIL

Lower the barricades there, Robespierre

Many letter-writers like to complain about "tax cuts for the rich" and "tax breaks for the rich." However, it is all fiction. The vast majority of the Bush tax cuts were for the middle class, and these were extended while the similar breaks for higher earners were not extended. Also, virtually all special tax breaks available under the code, such as breaks for children, tuition and retirement, are available only to the middle class. Other deductions are phased out for high-earners. Let's get facts straight before attempts at class warfare. WALTER BRANSON, VIA E-MAIL

President just can't take the money and run

RE: "SOMEONE'S POUTING, BUT IT'S NOT OBAMA" (METRO, MARCH 19) Your anti-GOP letter writers were misleading on several fronts concerning the sequester. Mr. Connell, the reduction in expenditures is well below 10 percent. In fact, it is only a cut in D.C.-speak (i.e., a cut from a planned increase). Actual spending is still higher than last year and much Mr. LaRosa, Medicare is headed for bankruptcy. Republicans want to make small adjustments now to prevent catastrophic ones later. A 100 percent tax rate on the rich wouldn't pay for the spendaholic-in-chief's proposals. There'd be a lot more money available in the Secret Service budget if Obama would negotiate with the GOP instead of flying around the country complaining that they don't want yet another trillion-dollar tax increase.

3 Duren, the reason for the postseason

► Neumann-Goretti star plays have chip on shoulder ► Junior guard overlooked nationally ► Leads Explorers to first tourney since 1992 ► Up next, Boise State

La Salle wouldn't be in the NCAA tournament without Tyreek Duren.

They would be close. But not in.

"You need outstanding players who are outstanding people, and that's how I feel about Tyreek," La Salle coach John Giannini said. "Tyreek can play for anyone in the country. When we recruited Tyreek, I knew it was a huge step toward getting to the NCAA tournament."

That goal was reached this past Sunday when La Salle landed in the Big Dance with a first-round matchup against Boise State. The winner draws No. 4 Kansas State.

Duren was a star at Neumann-Goretti, but not recruited on a national level. La Salle, Temple and Massachusetts showed the most interest. Other than that, hardly anything. Why?

"I have no idea," said Duren. "I felt a bit overlooked and kind of came in with a bit of a chip on ► Duren told reporters yesterday that he got a standing ovation Monday in his business finance class.

"If I had gone somewhere else, I might not have played right away. I am thrilled I made the choice to come here."

Duren has been mentioned as the best player in the city. Not bad for a player who was overlooked by so many.

"I'm honored people would think that of me," Duren said. "I'm just out there playing and doing what I've always done on the court. I'm so glad we're in the NCAA tournament."

His teammates are completely in his corner.

"Tyreek just gets it done on a consistent basis and, seeing it in practice, we know what he can do," said guard Tyrone Garland. "We have come together all season as a team, but without Tyreek, I don't know if we're dancing."

'Praying' for Bynum after knee surgery

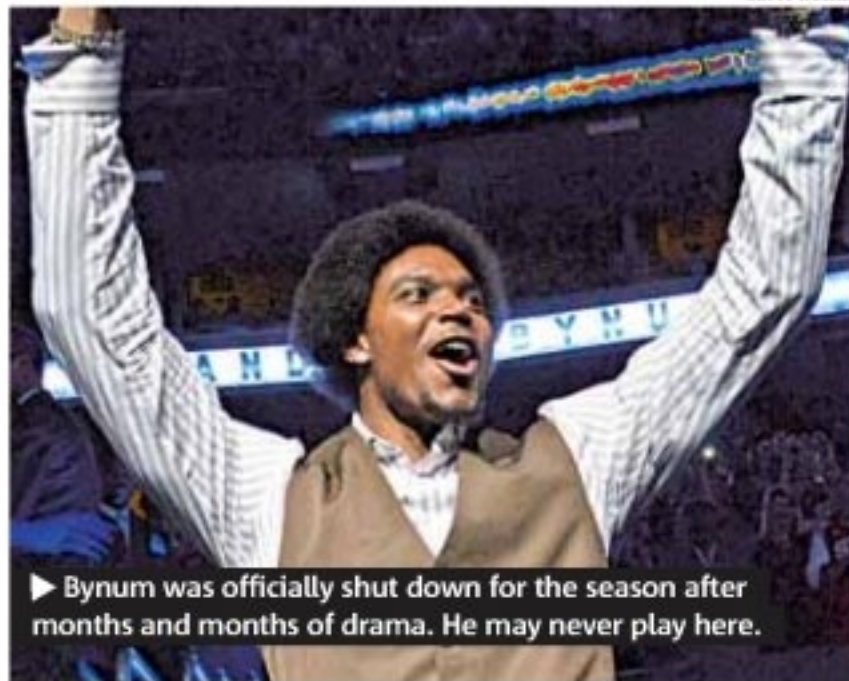

► All-Star center won't play for Sixers this year ► Unrestricted free agent after season ► Is he biggest bust in franchise history?

Andrew Bynum is out for the season and scheduled to have arthroscopic surgery on both knees. He may never play for the Sixers since he's an unrestricted free agent.

The team made a splash in the offseason when they acquired the two-time All-Star in a four-team, 12-player trade. The Lakers received Dwight Howard, the Nuggets picked up Andre Iguodala and the Magic got Nikola Vucevic and Maurice Harkless.

From the first day of training camp, Bynum's debut kept getting pushed back. There was weakened cartilage in the knees and bilateral bone bruises.

"I think it's a shame,"

► Bynum was officially shut down for the season after months and months of drama. He may never play here.

said center Spencer Hawes. "I feel bad for Andrew and bad for the fans. It just didn't work out for him this season. I think we're all praying for him."

Coach Doug Collins had been anxiously anticipating Bynum's presence in the middle. He may never see the 7-footer in a Sixers uniform.

"It's sad," Collins said. "It's been a tough year for our franchise and a tough year for Andrew."

Jrue Holiday was clearly upset when informed of the news.

"That sucks," he said. "That sucks to hear. ... I'll be praying for him."

Bynum's surgery was performed yesterday by Dr. David Altchek at New York's Hospital of Special Surgery. Beyond that, no one knows what the future holds for Bynum.

"I think it's a tough situation all around," Hawes said. "I sure would love to see him in a Sixers uniform. I'm just praying that he gets healthy."

Metro's NBA power rankings | by Jimmy Toscano

HEAT (52-14)
Wow. The Heat are clearly on a mission after Monday's last-second win over Boston. With 23 wins in a row, Miami is waiting to prey on postseason victims. Problem is, it's all or nothing.

THUNDER (50-17)
Metro was burned by the Thunder last week when they lost badly to the Spurs. Two big back-to-backs are ahead.

NUGGETS (46-22)
Denver jumps up three spots. A gritty win over Chicago earned Denver its 12th straight win. Yes, the Nuggets are legit.

GRIZZLIES (45-21)
Memphis suffered two tough losses on the road in Denver and in Utah. Those are two of the toughest places to win, but if this team has title hopes they need to win those.

CLIPPERS (46-21)
The Nuggets beat the Grizz, who beat the Clippers. Therefore, the Nuggets would beat the Clippers. That's our story.

SPURS (51-16)
San Antonio continues to kick adversity square in the face, but at some point adversity will kick back — until Tony Parker returns.

PACERS (41-26)
Things aren't going as expected. Exhibit A: Philly's Spencer Hawes racked up 18 points, 16 rebounds, eight assists and seven blocks against them in Saturday's loss.

NOTICE OF PETITION FOR GUARDIANSHIP OF MINOR AND PENDING HEARING TO: IDA WILLIAMS (MOTHER)
 You are hereby notified that a guardianship case has been filed in the Circuit Court for Somerset County, Maryland, Case No. 19-Z-12-0700125 TP. All persons who believe they are the parents of a male child born on June 13, 2001, in Wicomico County, Maryland, to the mother, Ida Williams, born December 31, 1978, and unknown father, shall file a written response. A copy of the Show Cause Order may be obtained from the Juvenile Clerk's Office at Circuit Court Somerset County, 30512 Prince William Street, Princess Anne, MD 21853, and toll free telephone number 1-800-341-2206. If you do not file a written objection by May 20, 2013, you will have agreed to the permanent loss of your parental rights to this child.

Greening the neighborhood

- ▶ Deadlines for neighborhood improvement projects are approaching quickly
- ▶ Sign up before it's too late

Spring still feels just out of reach, but that's no reason for city-dwellers to sit back on their snow-covered haunches. Deadlines for neighborhood improvement opportunities are swiftly approaching, whether you're ready or not. Get a jump-start on your spring cleaning — and greening — with a little help from the city. Renters, property owners and public space enthusiasts can all participate in upcoming initiatives and watch their block bloom.

In February of last year we saw the kickoff of TreePhilly, a citywide greening program introduced by Mayor Nutter and the Philadelphia Parks & Recreations Department. In line with the mayor's push to make Philadelphia the greenest city in America, TreePhilly provided 2,000 saplings to city residents for the low, low cost of ... nothing. That's right, the organization provides free trees either for your yard or for your street, and all you need to do is register.

A free tree is great, but a spotless block might be even better. The annual Philly Spring Cleanup will

12K

Last year Philadelphia saw 12,000 volunteers clean up more than 300 project sites, removing 1 million pounds of trash and distributing nearly 5,000 recycling bins to residents.

Plant barefoot

Through the help of UC Green, West Philly will get some fresh buds next month. Their Barefoot Tree Planting event will take place on April 20 and will spread trees throughout the southwest and University City neighborhoods. While there is no deadline date for registration, UC Green only has enough supplies, T-shirts and food for about 80 volunteers. Once they hit capacity they'll close registration, so you better not snooze on this one.

► Don't miss out on giving your neighborhood a makeover.

take place all over the city on April 13. Volunteers will remove litter, paint benches, landscape parks and generally scrub down and spruce up as many locations as possible. There are projects throughout the city you can join. If your 'hood isn't on the list, you can also propose your own local project.

Coops move from the country to the city

► Kevin McElroy and Matthew Wolpe show you how to raise chickens in your backyard — without it looking like the sticks

From the rise of farmer's markets to the development of green housing, it seems as though everyone has jumped on the sustainable-living train. But what if you want to take it a step further and start raising your own chickens? The trend is gaining popularity nationwide and has created a marketplace for books such as "Reinventing the Chicken Coop." In the new tome, California-based designers Kevin McElroy and Matthew Wolpe show us that raising chickens is doable and beneficial — even in an urban setting.

"We like to joke that we're bringing the chicken coop from the backyard to the front yard," says McElroy.

The book includes 14 stylish coop designs and building plans ranging from the most straightforward (the "A-Frame" coop, a modern triangular-shaped coop) to the most intricate (the "Coopsicle," a tree house-inspired version).

"We wanted the coops to be equal parts furniture, sculpture [and] chicken coop," says McElroy. "It's got to be functional, but it can also be beautiful and interesting."

But fear not, beginners. The guide caters to all demographics, from expert carpenters to those who have never set foot in a hardware store.

"Building something with your own hands is something that our society has gotten away from a little bit," says McElroy. "With this book, we're hoping that people will pick up a new tool, learn it and use it."

Basic elements

"The chickens have to have a safe place to sleep, a place to live in, a space from predators. It has to be easy to clean for the humans, but beyond that you can expand it and do whatever you want," says McElroy.

The benefits

"The obvious benefits would be fresh eggs and chickens. But it's great for raising kids. You can give them some of the responsibility of taking care of a coop," says McElroy. "And from a building perspective, learning how to use tools can be very empowering."
